CTG Nomad
New York City 2018

A group exhibition of 17 contemporary Vietnamese artists
6 – 22 September, 2018
Curated by Craig Thomas

FOREWORD

Craig Thomas Gallery has the pleasure of presenting the catalog for the CTG Nomad project's 2018 New York City exhibition featuring seventeen Vietnamese contemporary artists. The exhibition will take place at our pop-up gallery space at 361 Canal Street in lower Manhattan from 6 – 21 September 2018.

I would first like to thank friend of mine and friend of the gallery Tim Werthen for all his past support and encouragement and for introducing me to my collaborator on this year's event, Mike Pollack. I first met Mike at his gallery space in Williamsburg in 2004 and from our first conversation the seeds for this exhibition were planted. Mike and I continued to discuss this event over the intervening years, and it is a pleasure and an honor to have the chance to work with such an amiable and knowledgeable curator.

Thanks and admiration to all the artists who have created works for this exhibition and for the professional way they all have approached their practice and the gallery. The opportunity to collaborate with and experience the development of this new generation of Vietnamese visual artists has been one of the most rewarding professional experiences of my life.

Thanks as always to Nguyen Thi Phuoc Khanh, Tran Thi Bay and Stu Palmer for their essential and generous contributions to the gallery in general and this CTG Nomad exhibition in particular.

Finally, thanks to my mother June Thomas Young who has always been the gallery's most important benefactor.

I hope you all will enjoy this glimpse at our corner of the Vietnamese contemporary art scene and that this will be the first of many chances for CTG to bring Vietnamese artists to New York walls.

CTG Nomad – NYC 2018

Craig Thomas Gallery (CTG) was founded in 2009 with the express mission to create a new curated gallery space in Ho Chi Minh City focused primarily on the development of young Vietnamese visual artists. Over the nine years since its inception, CTG has endeavored to identify and support young artists and help them become established in their artistic practices. Although the gallery began with a local focus, CTG's roster is now evenly balanced with artists from Vietnam's three main art centers of Hanoi, Saigon and Hue. CTG hosts an annual program of exhibitions at our Saigon gallery which includes a minimum of two debutant artists having their first commercial gallery exhibitions each year.

For generations, Vietnamese artists' work has evinced the pervasive influence of early and mid-20th century European artists. The influence of French art and practice has also been particularly pronounced and a natural product of the colonizing country's establishment of Vietnam's first fine arts academy (École supérieure des beaux-arts de l'Indochine) in Hanoi in 1925. The two countries' long ties have often seen many of Vietnam's finest artists take the opportunity to live and work in Paris; a practice which continues to this day. This historical heritage has begun to be diminished, however, as economic development and political opening have allowed the country's artists to travel the world – physically and through the internet – and gain a more comprehensive perspective on contemporary art.

First opened to the outside world in the early 1990s, Vietnam's art scene has experienced slow but steady development over the ensuing two decades but still remains largely unknown outside of Southeast Asia. A smattering of the country's stronger and more innovative artists have begun to figure in important international collections and to have exhibitions in Europe and North America – a number of them feature in this exhibition – but the country of greater than ninety million people still punches below its artistic weight. There is great talent in Vietnam and a new generation of artists born in the post-American War period has begun to rise and now stands poised to take its proper place on the world stage.

CTG Nomad is CTG's roving gallery project to bring Vietnamese contemporary artists to the great art cities of the world. We aspire to increase the awareness of Vietnamese art generally and create new paths for young artists to project their work beyond their home country. New York was the natural first choice for the inaugural edition of the series because of the gallery's ties to the city through friendship and the previous support of many New York-based collectors. The prominent role that New York plays in the imaginations and aspirations of most young Vietnamese artists was also a deciding factor. A second edition of CTG Nomad is being planned for Paris in the fall of 2019.

The artists featured in CTG Nomad's 2018 iteration include many of the country's strongest painters under forty years old with a number of them being under thirty. They hail from all corners of Vietnam and work with a variety of materials and a diversity of art practices. Their styles reflect a myriad of influences. Some continue to work and innovate with traditional materials like silk and do paper while others pursue distinctive new paths like wood burn. Many have points to make about the social and political issues that are affecting their country. Points which must be made with caution and an understanding of what is permissible expression in the country. Their assemblage for this exhibition is the result of more than a decade of explorative curating by CTG.

Lacking the space to describe at length the many superlative qualities of the seventeen artists of the CTG Nomad 2018 exhibition, I would refer all to the following pages of this catalog for condensed versions of each of their individual biographies. For further details on each of the artists, including images and full biographies, we invite you to visit our website (cthomasgallery.com) or contact us directly via email (cthomasgallery@gmail.com). Thank you for coming and we hope you enjoy the show.
